First, a mandate is NOT a law and is not legal to enforce or fine someone for not complying. Second, there is NO scientific proof that the masks currently worn are in anyway effective against transmitting anything contagious. However, there is proof that a face covering worn for a long period of time IS UNHEALTHY, as your breathing in your own Co2 which lowers a person's oxygen level. Which for me personally and anyone who has COPD and already has trouble breathing, a face covering of any kind can be very dangerous. This also applies to those who suffer from asthma. As for children, requiring them to wear a face covering all day in school not only lowers their oxygen level but the face covering is a breeding ground for bacteria, which is PROVEN to make children ill. It's clear when weighing the data, there is no benefit to face masks but there is factual data they are unhealthy and useless against transmission of any virus.
