I am not in favor of the county commissioners implementing fines to individuals or businesses if they are not wearing a mask. There are those who cannot wear a mask for health and mental reasons. These individuals will be forever justifying themselves every time they enter a building in Charles County. Even if they receive a medical exemption, the bias and difficulty encountered already (without fines) is enough to make a hermit out of people. How much worse will it be when they are fines!? Who will implement the rules? What burden will this place on businesses to police this rule? Who's judgement will be called upon to allow the medical exemptions? A store employee? Disabled adults who can't keep a mask on properly have been isolated enough already due to the pandemic. Isn't that punishment enough?
