I would like to see our County Commissioners find ways to be more intentional with their effort to connect and engage with residents who own property in Bryans Road. I want to see the same magnitude of engagement for community decisions or changes in the same way we receive engagement for our votes being requested on larger scales. When it's time to vote, we receive text messages, voice recordings, large signs displayed at every corner and commercials from TV/social media. I would like us to have more meeting options and virtual surveys to be vocal about things that will cost us in the future. I'm open to development in Bryans Road but I'd like the Commissioners and business owners to poll the communities and ask us what we want and require the businesses coming to this city to bring excellence in the operation of it. This idea started during a pandemic where many people were mentally paralyzed, dealing with health, death, financial challenges and more. The mental capacity wasn't there for many to know what was transpiring in our city. As a resident since 2009, I'd love to give input for my city but this information wasn't easily accessible or understandable for people who've never heard of it before. When I found the site, I noticed that information was outdated, links for surveys or other input didn't even work. Also, reviewing 71 pages of information while having a busy life as a federal employee isn't something quick and easy to do. So, I'm requesting more time for more meetings and input from all of the subdivisions and new builds. Many of us chose Bryans Road as it is because it was a slower paced city with nature. Adding roundabouts and road changes will lead to more maintenance and surely add up. There are other things we can do to generate wealth to this historic city like hosting an annual carnival to commemorate the historic Marshall Hall Amusement Park or host Jazz In the Park events as we have beautiful parks. Please give us more time to supply input.
