I have lived in Bryans Road for 14 years, I chose it because of its small town atmosphere. I like that our town only has one stop light. Of course the town has shortcomings, but I don't think the current plan will be able to keep that small town appearance. Not by adding thousands of homes, adding a new road that will probably have another stoplight, and three roundabouts. People choose Bryans Road for the city that it is, not the city that could be in 10-20 years with "improvements." We like the quiet, the natural landscape and don't have any interest in becoming like Waldorf or La Plata.
