While the state may not feel that JC Parks is overcrowded I think the people in the community do. I am the PTO President and this many people will overload an already crowded school. The school also has no room for growth. There are no available classrooms in the building to add more classes/teachers. This would result in the same redistricting until a new elementary school is finally built problem that is happening in other areas of the county. Not including a new elementary school is poor planning. Also the stores and restaurants in the area can't handle the population as it is right now. Building more homes and hoping that the businesses then come is putting the cart before the horse. You are thinking of the end game not what will happen in the years leading up to the finish.

People will begin moving here far before a new restaurant or store decides to come and once again during that time you will be overloading an already overcrowded system. Plan for an elementary school. Bring in new stores in phases and don't start the next stage of building houses till the store requirements for the previous stage have been met.
