Primary point: The lead in aviation fuel released in such close proximity to a school comprised predominantly of Black children by almost exclusively White pilots spending enjoying their expendable income. EPA will, in the not too distant future, be forced to regulate the use of aviation fuel and close down the Maryland Airport, the expansion of which will have cost taxpayers an inordinate amount for those same White relatively wealthy pilots. The expansion of which, thanks to the levels of lead generated, will have decimated the fisheries and killed off a nascent ecotourism.
