I prayerfully hope that you will seriously look at the most recent credible data on this topic and I think you will find that masks (in the general population-especially the cloth type) do not work to prevent transmission of COVID. I am a registered nurse and hold a MSN in nursing education. Surgical masks, N-95 type masks that have been sized and fit tested for each individual user are most effective. This is not the masking in question. The data is clear that masking the general population is extremely ineffective and I pray that you will carefully read current and credible data before casting your vote. Thank you
